FOURTH OF BENSON'S SEA-RAFTS

LATEST WATERFRONT NEWS | the river.

The marine event of the day yesterday was the arrival down from Stella of the fourth of the huge Benson sea-going rafts, containing, practically, four million feet of timbers. and destined for the mills of the Benson Logging Company, at San Diego. The great cigarshaped mass, swathed in thousands of feet of chain and cored with wire cables, was under mainpulation of the big towing steamers M. F. Henderson and Sarah A. Dixon, and was cleverly handled all the way through Astoria waters, and anchored in the lower harbor to await the arrival of the Spreckles sea-tug Dauntless, due at any hour, and probably deterred by the strong nor wester that has held back the liners Roanoke and Rose City. The raft will go to sea the moment it is safe to go over the bar, perhaps today. There are two more to come, being now in the vast
